English synopsis: My heart, what is happening to you? Why are you so troubled? Everything you once loved and cared for is gone, along with your diligence and peace. How did it come to this? Are you captivated by this youthful beauty, that lovely figure, and those eyes full of faith and kindness? Even when I try to escape and flee, I am inevitably drawn back to her. Held by this magical thread that can't be broken, the loveless girl holds me against my will. Now I must live within her enchanting circle. What an immense change! Love, let me go!

English translation: When a faithful, tender lover serves us and gets attached to us, why search for a reason that it is foolish not to love? But when one sees an unfaithful lover that easily imparts, who flies from girl to girl, ah, then one is foolish to love. When one can form a bond without sorrow or enchantment, when love has nothing uncomfortable, then it is foolish not to love. But if there is a little fear that one might stop being charming, or that a shepherd has the art of pretending, ah then it is foolish to love. In the times of pleasant youth, where one shines with a million charms, since we please and impress everyone, it is foolish not to love. When a lover without constancy, believes he has the right to charm us, if you must pay for his caring in advance, ah, then one is foolish to love.
